Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

I. Species of the embodiment disclosed on page 16, lines 5-12; in particular, configuring the test pattern to include as many color ramps as will fit per row based on the size of the print medium by not allowing the size of the color ramps to vary.

II. Species of the embodiment disclosed on page 16, lines 20-32; in particular, configuring the test pattern to include as many color ramps as will fit per row based on the size of the print medium by allowing the size of the color ramps to vary by adjusting the size and number of color patches. For example, when the size of color ramps do not allow a certain number (e.g., X number of color ramps) of color ramps to be fit into a row, the size of the color ramps are reduced such that X number of colors ramps would fit a row after size reduction.

Applicant amended claim 39 and identifies all claims reads on the embodiment disclosed on page 16, lines 5-12.

It appears the applicant is confused about what is being restricted.

In the first embodiment, (page 16, lines 5-12) number of color ramps is set to maximum value, in this example four. Then at 61, a target test pattern description is created with this number of color ramps per row. At 64, the processor acquires the previously measured printable size of the medium from store 63. The target test pattern size is compared to the printable size of the medium at 62 and if found to be smaller is printed at 65. If found to be larger, then the number of color ramps per row is reduced by one at 66. This embodiment does not involve adjusting number of color patches, or adjusting height of color patches, or adjusting width of the color patches.

An example of claim that belongs to this embodiment is claim 25. An example of claims that does not belong to this embodiment is claim 33, 39.

On the contrary, the limitation of adjusting color patches is disclosed in embodiment of page 16, lines 20-32. (note: in this embodiment, the size of color ramps are changed with the change of the color patches).

An example of claim that does not read on this embodiment is claim 25 (assuming that claim 25 meet 112 2nd paragraph requirement).

With the above detailed explanation, applicant should be able to understand the restriction requirement.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
